What's Today's News?

Bowers elementary school held a “learning slam” last month...

Students from each class in grades 2-5 came up and presented something they have learned which demonstrated creativity, courage, collaboration or excellence.

The students did a wonderful job of presenting their projects and thoughts. It took great courage for them to come up in front of their peers and present. Many students shared experiences that exemplified excellence and courage which they noticed in their peers and many shared personal experiences and stories. The audience was very engaged and respectful of all the students. Many students came away with ideas and inspiration for future learning.

And while their older schoolmates were sharing ideas with one another, the kindergarteners were involved in creative, constructive play!
